FRONT COVER

Fishing is a popular sport in Sugar Land for all ages. Many neighborhoods have lakes for families to enjoy, and the Parks and Recreation Department works with Texas Parks and Wildlife to stock ponds at City parks.

Sugar Land’s annual New Year’s Eve celebration is a party unlike anything in the region. It’s one of many reasons Sugar Land is quickly becoming a destination for fun. Last year, voters approved a festival site near the Brazos River for citywide celebrations, multi-day music events and more. Photo by Randy Koslovsky.

Trails like those found in Oyster Creek Park are popular among Sugar Land residents. In 2013, voters approved a $31.5 million bond referendum that included approximately $10 million for a connecting network of nearly 10 miles of hike and bike trails and bridges. Implementation is expected to begin this year. Photo by Peggie Yin.

Culture is a priority in one of the nation’s most diverse cities, as seen here at our annual Cultural Kite Festival. A 6,400-seat “theater of the future” will forever change the landscape of Sugar Land and host a wide range of performances including nationally renowned music acts, family entertainment, theater productions and cultural attractions.

Years ago, a citizen-led Visioning Task Force identified cultural and entertainment venues as a top priority. Following the successful opening of the Museum of Natural Science at Sugar Land, the City embarked on the first of the task force’s recommendation, a minor league baseball stadium. Constellation Field has set new Atlantic League attendance records and is on pace to surpass a feasibility study that projected an economic benefit of $169 million over 30 years. Photo by Carl Mayfield.

Sugar Land is an award-winning community with a nationally recognized quality of life. The City has been ranked as one of the nation’s “Best Places to Live,” “Best Places to Raise a Family” and one of “America’s Best Places for Youth,” to name just a few national accolades. Sugar Land was rated the 19th safest city in America last year, and the third safest in Texas, according to FBI crime statistics. Photo by Julia Garza.

Despite dark skies, a capacity crowd filled Constellation Field last year for the Sugar Land’s Star Spangled Spectacular. The 7,500-seat stadium is a year-round community amenity that offers minor league baseball; concerts; and community, corporate, private and special events. Constellation Field exceeded attendance expectations in 2014 by 62 percent, an increase of 20,000 visitors over last year. Photo by Randy Koslovsky.

Since 1999, Sugar Land's Office of Economic Development has worked with more than 40 corporations and developers to expand, construct improvements or relocate to Sugar Land, bringing with them thousands of jobs and over $1 billion in capital investment. More than 15 corporations from the 2014 Fortune 500 lists have a significant presence in the City of Sugar Land. Sugar Land has achieved its sustainable, strong local economy through aggressive, focused efforts that create new wealth, jobs as well as retail experiences.

The beauty and serenity of Sugar Land has not been lost during Sugar Land’s evolution from a sleepy, small town into a vibrant, economically strong urban City. Both passive and recreational amenities can be found in Sugar Land’s expansive parks and trail system, as can be found in Oyster Creek Park. Photo by Marquise Cortez.

These iFest Live performers showcase Sugar Land as one of the nation’s most diverse cities. The City was the first community in the country to be named a Community of Respect in 2007 and has received the accolade every year since. It’s the result of a culture that appreciates, values and celebrates individual differences. The success Sugar Land has enjoyed as a City, and its position as a leader in Fort Bend County and the nation, isn’t just the result of any one person or group. Photo by Priscilla Monroe.

Sugar Land is consistently able to successfully deliver major projects and quality-of-life improvements while having one of the lowest tax rates in the state of Texas. It is this emphasis on value for tax dollars that may just be the City’s greatest accomplishment of all. Photo by Iman Shahkarami.
